

Abstract

A contact screw for conductive cores of a shielded cable, such screw being provided to be moved axially in a connecting device by means of threading; it has a shank (1) with screw threading (3) and a contact tip (2) the section of which provided for penetration of the cable insulation and the shield is provided with a coating (4) of insulating material, the exterior surface of the coating (4) being provided with threading (5) whose pitch is greater than the pitch of the screw threading (3) on the shank (1).

(FIGS. 1 and 2)